Fox News - EPA admits new coal regulations won't reduce global warming - 9/26/13 - An Environmental Protection Agency proposal designed to reduce CO2 emissions and reduce global warming will actually have no "notable CO2 emission changes." So a rule that will essentially ban new coal-fired power plants will actually have no impact on global warming. Got it. <http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2013/09/26/epa-admits-new-coal-regulations-wont-reduce-global-warming/>

St. Louis Beacon - Commentary: Climate change: Economics makes for strange science - 9/26/13 - I would argue that warming theorists have exaggerated their case to advance an agenda that has become as much political as it is scientific. https://www.stlbeacon.org/#!/content/32934/voices_guzy_climate_092413

Associated Press - EPA says U.S. falling short in shrinking annual Gulf "Dead Zone" - 9/25/13 - Speaking in Minneapolis on Tuesday, Environmental Protection Agency officials said states in the river's watershed need to accelerate efforts to cut pollution from farm field runoff and discharges from sewage treatment plants.
